JARS OF CLAY, K-LOVE AND AIR 1 PARTNER FOR BLOOD:WATER MISSION RADIO-THON

Band Took To The Airwaves For Day-Long Fundraising Effort June 8; Raised More Than $860,000 in Effort to Complete 1,000 Wells Project

(Nashville, Tenn.) June 21, 2010 – Multi-Platinum and three-time GRAMMY® Awardwinning band Jars of Clay, long ambitious in its plans for its charitable organization, Blood:Water Mission, recently teamed up with K-LOVE and Air 1 radio networks to raise the necessary funds and awareness to complete Blood:Water Mission's 1000 Wells Project, which was launched in 2005.

The band joined forces with K-LOVE and Air 1 for a day-long Well Done Campaign radio-thon Tuesday, June 8, and raised over $860,000 for Blood:Water Mission. These donations will fund the construction of 95 water projects, leaving the organization only 15 shy of its 1000-well goal. In 2005, Jars of Clay and K-LOVE conducted a similar event to launch Blood:Water Mission's 1000 Wells Project which helps provide access to clean water to communities in sub-Saharan Africa. With the completion of that campaign in sight, the groups convened again to help get that project to the finish line and set up teh charity's next phase of operation.

Jars of Clay front man Dan Haseltine reflects, "This was one of the most amazing displays of generosity I have experienced. It is hard to imagine that a single day of radio can turn into clean water for thousands of Africans. This will save so many lives!"

Throughout the day, Jars of Clay shared the stories of individuals they have met through the years in sub-Saharan Africa: stories of dignity, hope, and truth, stories of communities impacted because of the generous support of donors around the world.
